Confirmation of Peer Review

Using Evidence in Policy and Practice: Lessons from Africa

To Whom This May Concern,

Using Evidence in Policy and Practice: Lessons from Africa, edited by Ian Goldman and Mine Pabari, involved a rigorous, single-blind, peer review process at proposal stage. Three reviews were obtained from highly respected experts in the field, with vast research and teaching experience themselves, all of whom highly recommended that we publish the book. The review process was fair and adhered to the professional and scientific standards expected by Routledge publications. The book is currently in production and is expected to publish in July 2020.

Routledge is the world's largest academic publisher in the Humanities and Social Sciences. Our publishing program encompasses ground-breaking textbooks and premier, peer-reviewed research in the Social Sciences, Humanities, Built Environment, Education and Behavioural Sciences. All of our books are subject to peer review by respected academic specialists who provide independent advice on the content, quality, and potential market for a finished book.

If you have any queries, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely,

Matthew Shobbrook
